When have you experienced peace or courage simply because of who was with you? What might that reveal about how our souls respond to God's presence?

What story or moment in Scripture most clearly shows you that God wants to be with His people? How does that truth shape the way you see your own relationship with Him?

Read Exodus 34:29-35 and then 2 Corinthians 3:7-18. How do these two scriptures relate? How does it cause you to reflect on the access we have to God?

Why do you think silence and stillness with God can feel so hard in our culture? What might help you begin to enjoy simply "being" with Him rather than always "doing" for Him?

What's one ordinary part of your day that could become sacred if you did it with God in mind? What might it look like to "invite God in" to that moment this week?

How does spending time with God influence the way you respond to people who are difficult, different, or draining? Is there someone this week you could intentionally see and treat through God's eyes?

Aaron challenged us to start small—turning moments into encounters with God. What's one small practice you could begin this week to remind yourself that God is with you?
